

History

History is taught through a topic approach. Each year group focuses on different aspects throughout the year. We aim to develop the children's historical understanding through the use of artefacts and secondary sources in order to foster research skills and an empathy with the past.

Year group trips often focus on a specific aspect of the topic being studied. October each year is an opportunity to consider Black History. Specialist groups visit the school to provide the children with a variety of experiences related to the historical period they are studying. This enables them to become active in their learning through the use of role-play.
